Phil's Corner

How do you express love? Author Gary Chapman claims we each prefer one of five love "languages." Some feel loved receiving gifts; others like acts of service. Some need "quality time," others prefer words of affirmation. Physical touch is the fifth category.

All the languages require giving something, whether it be material goods, time, affection, words or service. My friend Joe's mother loves to serve food. Anyone who visits Vera's house comes away full! Tama likes my time; we can drive a hundred miles without a word and she will feel loved.

Here at the resort, I see love expressed in so many ways. Helping a neighbor, sharing a mess of crappie or a jar of blackberry jam. Mowing a yard or weeding a flower bed. Volunteering. Building a float! The kitchen band visiting nursing homes. The sewers and knitters who give their work to the less fortunate. These are just a few of the "love gifts" taking place every day.

August is Appreciation month, and our annual dinner is picking up on our 50th anniversary theme: Dinner at Grandma's house 1965. Many of us were blessed with loving Grandmothers. What do you remember about Grandma's dinners back then? I think of meat and potatoes, Jell-O, pickles and jams. Big yeasty rolls with butter. Taking a nap after the big meal. Singing around the piano or playing a game of canasta.

Throwing the party is one way Tama and I can express our love and appreciation back to you. We'll try to have everything - except the hammock!

God Bless,

Phil

Jim & Barb Martus and Rich & Sherry Flegel pose beside the 50th anniversary float they created for the July 4th boat parade. You didn't win the trophy but you're winners in our book!
